HONGKONG, TUESDAY, NOV. 23, 1869

RECIPROCITY.

Ir has been recently announced that certain Chinese in the North entertain the idea of sending to England an agent or agents to represent their commercial interests not in a diplomatic but in strictly business sense. They propose in effect, to start a "house" at Liverpool, Manchester, or some other centre of British trade, of which the managers; tegards connection with their clients in China, shall be Chinese, but, of course , assisted by foreign clerks. Now it occurs to us that if this proposition is bona fide -and we have heard of it from so many sources that we believe it to be in serious contemplation it may be made a very effectual handle for impressing upon the Chinese mind the necessity for reciprocity in commercial matters. We can scarcely imagine anything which wou stagger the average native official more than the information that the narrow minded restrictions placed by his superiors upon foreign trade in China would own countrymen to reside at any, say would be absolutely impossible to enforce any such condition as being entirely alien to the spirits of our laws. But th mere raising the question and an insistance upon the same facilities being granted to our merchants in China as we afford to foreign merchants in England would do some good, as bringing home the idea of reciprocity in commercia matters for the first time to the nativ official mind. In other words, it would be a most convenient peg whereon hang arguments, when the time comesas it shortly must come for the reci procity question to be argued over again and amended in accordance with the progress of modern ideas and events in China. It is just the sort of argument to which the Chinese mind is open-"We will do so and so for you if you will do so and so for us." Hitherto it has always seemed to them that the advantages sought have been exclusively ours. Of course foreigners know al about the mutual benefits of trade, even if it be conducted only by one party as to transport and voyaging. But the Chinese are very slow to perceive the advantages which must infallibly accrue to their own people by the extension of trade and intercourse with foreign na-If therefore, a few natives, more neighbours, should really start on such a afforded to our officials to point the of much which has already taken precisely the opposite of those which the fatal drawback to unrestrained intorcourse between Chinese and foreigners, their absolute want of "human sympathy" with foreigners, Hence arises their absolute blindness to what civilized nations define as "reciprocity." They do not grasp the idea of equality between inen sufficiently to understand that anything save interest should induce them to grant to others the facilities which are granted to their own people by foreign thatibus. This truth must be borne in lice were more elieractic than formerly, was suspicious that this, being the only the order for the manufacture of their hand in any hegociations which may guided, Sir Rutherford Alcock. Greater

miracles have been known, even in

can be done, however, to ensure the necessary result until China has been humbled by main force is another question. For our own parts we fear not; but this is no reason why we should pander to native self-conceit with our eyes open, aware as we are that their successful refusal to reciprocate is in their own eyes a testimony to their own superiority.

A CORRESPONDENT sends us a line upon a matter which in view of the coming regatta may possess an interest for some of our readers. It would seem to be a weakness on the part of a good many nautically disposed to ignore those "rules of the road" to be observed at sea-or in harbor either-which experience has demonstrated to be necessary for mutual safety and convenience. For the information of those who do not know better (though we suspect that infringements are rather wilful than ignorant) we may observe that the rule of the road broadly stated is as follows :- "That vessels running free should give way to those on a wind, and vessels on the port tack give way to those on the starboard tack." Unfortunately it is imcessful results in the city of Victoria by the Registrar General-nearly three per cent we are credibly informed read and are guided by them-but some such step would almost appear necessary. We can thoroughly endorse the opinion of our correspondent :- "It is very desirable that all Yachtsmen should be well ac quainted with these rules. I think, however, there are some who imagine that a LITTLE OUTTER ought to give way to a BIG CUTTER on all occasions, which I beg to state is a gross error; and the mistake, if one, ought to be rectified otherwise some of the small yachts during the regatta may possibly come to grief. We hope that no complaints of this nature will mar the pleasure of to-morrow's sailing matches.

THE November Criminal Sessions were closed last evening. The prisoners in the highway robbery, with violence, alleged to have been committed on the Sowkewan Road, were discharged by proclamation, as there was not sufficient evidence against Paug Sing Wah and Wong Ayau, the two seamen who were convicted of having been concerned in a piratical attack on a Heungshan; junk, on June 18th of this year, and of having endangered life in so doing, were brought up for sentence. As no actual. of life had resulted from the attack, Lordship the Acting Chief Justice said that he would simply record the sentence of death against the prisoners, leaving rest to the Executive. Sentence was then recorded in the usual way.

THE Englishman calls attention to the strong feeling existing in Burmah, and duly represented by the Rangoon papers, on the subject of the export duty on rice. This feeling finds an echo amongst commercial circles in the metropolis, and is shared in by all who have the real interests of India at heart. In a former article, we pointcertain specified, ports. Of course it ed out the absolute necessity of re-distributing the Customs' tariff with a view to exempting rice and other staple articles, in which India no longer enjoys a monopoly, from an export duty: The Rangoon Times assures us that the Rice trade is threatened with total destruction unless the Burmese exporters can start on the same basis as those of Saigon and Bangkok,

> A PARSEE family, consisting of Dorabiee Bombay in February last on a voyage round the world. They have visited Egypt and Palestine. Turkey and the chief cities on the Continent, and are now in London, They propose to return to India by America, China and the Straits. If they carry out this intention they will undoubtedly be the first Natives of India that have made a tour round the world. - F. of India.

A. Nicalse v. Yen Tak, $101, to recover damage done to a pleasure-boat belonging to the plaintiff - Mr Caldwell for the plaintiff, and Mr Hazeland for defendant.

Defendant appeared as master of the junk Yee Lee, and is sued by plaintiff in that the said junk ran into and caused the damage stated to a pleasure boat lying astern of the ship Frederick. Mr Caldwell stated that as the vessel is lying some distance out to the westward, the Captain used the boat for going to and fro between the ship and shore On the early morning of Sunday, 14th instant, the defendant's junk was coming into harbor without any lights; and about 1.40 a.m. she came straight across the stern of the Frederick, striking the pleasure-boat in the port quarter. The Frederick had her lights on board in their proper place, and one of the seamen hailed the junk as she came towards the ship; but nobody appeared to have seen any one on board the junk except the Lokong on board.

Captain Nicaise said the boat damaged as alleged cost him $300, and that it was now smashed : he went to a ship's carpenter as to the question of damage.

Mr. Burgess, mate of the Frederick, described how he was roused early in the morning, how he watched where the junk anchored, hear the Sailors' Home, and how her there at three o'clock, and then again in the same place at five o'clock when he went on board the junk accompanied by the European constable. On crossexamination by Mr Hazeland, this witness stoutly maintained that he could not have been mistaken in the junk : he would ! known it among half-a dozen. The bow of the junk was marked with white paint where she struck the white boat.

Au able seaman corroborated the statement about the anchoring, said the junk was hailed by him without effect, and that he saw the junk at anchor till four o'clock. Lokong 35 and European P. ### (From our own Correspondent.) Paris, October 9, 1869.

There is a great deal of irritation abroad -there is not a particle of confidence, and since the Emperor's illness, the fears for the future have settled into a chronic alarm. Now when the papers have Spanish pride having been insulted by the | ceased to issue "stop press" editions, and the Crown of Leon and Castile, saw the same symbol, trained through all the Courts | the Newgate Calendar literature as inciters of Europe, only to be declined with thanks. The Regency ought to have declared the nation a Republic, what de facto it is, and has been—and "People the First" might have proved a better mouarch than intended Genoa the First, or Montpensier the Second. The Republicans have taken to arms, and the Carlists as a matter of course march in the confusion. It is a pity the Cortes was not allowed to decide the matter constitutionally, which is now left to the fortune of war. Prussia and Austria are inclined to bury the hatchet, and the former, by the Prince Royal's visit to Vienna cries "Let us be friends." However, Bismark does not the less keep his eyes on the flesh-pots of Southern Germany. France does not object to Baden &c., going over to the Northern Confederation, but the people must pronounce on their own disosal. France will not allow Prussia to confederate any more after the high Roman fashion, as was the case with Honover, Frankfort, &c. where the citizens were incorporated, as Paddy would say, without as much as, "by your lave," Denmark has been reminding us, that Prussia has not et honored her Schleswig Draft. His Holiness, he is like other sinners very "tight place" for money, and Peter's Pence is not proving by any means the bird with the golden egg. His warriors do not feel inclined to wear out their lives mounting guard, and are withdrawing in rather large numbers. Even the attraction of the Gecumenical Council will not restrain them. The free thinkers have organized their plans for holding their Coumenical Council, simultaneously with that in "another place." But they intend to solve the Roman question, by putting the screw on the French Liberals, by getting up petitions to the Deputies to formally move the recall of the braves, and show the Emperor that public opinion desires him to revoke his jumais on this point, as he has done on so many others. Well, this would be something like business. The fact is, we are fatigued of late with Congresses, Leagues -national and international-of poets who announce late scarcity has occasioned, and which His

THE BLOOD OF ST. JANUARIUS.

A very amusing account of the liquefaction of the blood of St. Januarius has appeared in the Times, and another, apparently by the same writer, but with different touches, in the Pall Mall Gazette. It would seem from these narratives that the so-called miracle is impressive neither to Catholies nor to Protestants, -that it is s periodical 'transaction' popular in Naples chiefly as giving occasion to a public holiday of the wildest kind, and that the liquefaction takes place chiefly through the agency of motion-or, at least, only takes lace after the vessel (a sort of carriagelamp), which holds it, has been turned about repeatedly. If, however, motion is the cause of liquefaction, surely the substance, whatever it be, should solidify again when the vessel is at rest -- whereas the writer of the account in the Times states that after having been kissed by all who care to kiss it, the vessel is "placed on the grand altar till the evening," and we conclude that the liquified substance does not again congeal till it is put out of sight. On one of the three days on which the writer in the Times observed the process, the liquefaction took 13 minutes, on another 9, and on another 6, -the most rapid liquefaction taking place on the first day of the three (Sunday). The mode of the "miracle" suggested no sort of trick or underhand proceeding to this observer, but neither did it suggest the slightest impression of sacreduess or devotion. It was aimply a mechanical incantation, performed by the singing of the Nicene Creed, or if that does not answer, of the Athanasian Creed, which seems to be in the nature of an & fortiori argument to liquefy, -not so surprising, by the way, if one did not not snppose that use must have deadened its effect by this time, as it he the effect of the liquefaction itself .- Spectator.
